

Priority Access Referral: Life Sustaining Health Services

You must complete all sections of the form.

Some Nova Scotians require therapy to support a vital function that is necessary for life. They must take time away from their normal everyday activities to receive life-sustaining services that are provided at a regional health centre by a licensed medical professional.

While Government is changing how healthcare is delivered by increasing access to virtual care and supports that connect patients with health care providers closer to home, in some cases people may need to move closer to a regional health centre to access the tertiary and quaternary life-sustaining health services they need. Others may be waiting in hospital and cannot be discharged until they have a place to live that is closer to a regional health centre so they can access these services.

When a person who qualifies for public housing can demonstrate that there is a significant barrier to receiving a life-sustaining health service and therefore must move closer to a regional health centre to access the life-sustaining health service, they may be eligible for priority access and be placed on the Priority Access waitlist in chronological order.

Applicants may be eligible for priority access to public housing if a medical health professional certifies that they require regular, prolonged and in-person life-sustaining services to support a vital life function:

- With no expectation of cessation of services.
- These services can only be accessed at the regional health centre.

To be granted approval for priority access to public housing under the Life Sustaining Health Services Stream, applicants must provide the following documents to their NSPHA district office:

1. Public Housing Application (completed by the applicant).
2. Priority Access Referral: Life Sustaining Health Services (completed by the applicant and qualified professional).

How to complete this referral

- ☐ I will be placed on waitlists for all properties in my municipality that are suitable based on my household size.
- ☐ Only the number of bedrooms I need, and my accessibility requirements will be considered when determining suitable units for my household. This means that smoking, pets or parking preferences may not be met when I am offered a unit.
